Headlights

Crystal Headlights

Crystal headlights are stock replacement headlights that offer a butly different design over the stock application. They are typically available with chrome and/or black housings and re-use the stock bulbs.

Projector Headlights

Projector headlights offer different styling combined with a convex lens to project the light across a larger range, Contrary to popular misconception, projectors do not amplify the light produced, they only redirect existing light across a wider area. Also, these headlights usually convert the stock bulb type to smaller bulbs (typically H3 and H1).

Headlight Features:

LED

Certain headlight and projector headlights are styledwith LED technology. Typically, the LED strip is left unwired, allowing the end user to decide which light to splice the wiring to, wheter it be having the LED's function as parking, signal, or other lights. Most LED headlights have LED's that light up amber, with a few applications lighting up super white.

Halo

Some headlights and projectors have rings of light around the headlight bulb area, similar to the styling of newer European luxury cars. These 'Halo' headlights and projectors, as they are called, are more than just an esthetic upgrade, as they increase the amount of light put out by your headlights. Additionally, when spliced into the parking lights, they can provide a low enough level of light to be discreet while still illuminating the path in outdoor situations such as hunting and fishing.

LED Type

There are two types of Halos. The 'standard' or 'older' style Halos utilize super white which use a couple of LED's at points around the halo to give the illusion of a full illuminated circle.

CCFL Halos

The newer styles Halos, or CCFL's as they are properly called, utilize Cold Cathode Fluorescent Lamp technology to deliver a light that fully illuminates the entire Halo. In addition to being greatly brighter, they also more durable than their LED counterparts, being able to easily withstand the harshest climates.

Advanced Installation Situations

Projector Bulb Replacament

Many customers opt to replace the bulbs that come with their projector headlights with after market bulbs. Many customers mistakenly think that they can replace the bulb with the stock application. In reality, since most projectors convert the stock bulb to a small bulb if they want to replace the bulbs they need to know what bulb the projector uses. Though most projectors use an H3 for the low beam and an H1 for the high beam, there are some exceptions. In order to determine what type of bulbs a projector (and most headlights for that matter) uses, you can check the front of the lens below the appropriate bulb housing. Please be aware that some bulbs have multiple names as follows:

H1 = no other common name	9004 = HB 1
H3 = no other common name	9005 = HB 3
H4 = HB2 = 9003	9006 = HB 4
H7 = no other common name	9007 = HB 5

Halo and Other Wiring

Most Halo headlights and taillights do not come pre-wired. This allows the user to decide which light to have the Halo function as. The most common light to connect to is the parking light, though some customers connect the light to their signal lights or stop lamps. Installing them on a separate switch is also a possibility, as is not connecting them at all.

The Halos are connected via two wires which are left bare from the Halo, one for negative (ground) and one for positive (power). The negative can be grounded or connected to the negative wire on the stock harness. The positive needs to connect to the exact function on the lamp you desire. For instance, on a turn signal/parking light there are 2 wires; one for parking light function and one to signal. Depending which function you want, you would have to determine which wire powers which function and splice the Halo power light into it. Incidentally, though we recommend using a tester, on parking/signal bulbs the parking light wire tends to have a stripe, and the signal is sometimes thicker.

Unfortunately, as there are so many types that use Halo technologies, there are different color configurations for positiveand negative. Possible color configurations are as follows: Red (+/-)* and Red (+/-)*

Red (+) and Black (-)

Red (+) and White (-)

Blue (+) and White (-)

Blue (+) and Black (-)

* Interchangeable, just choose one for positive & one for negative

The same configurations are applicable to LED strips headlights, and headlights that include a signal bulb that must be wired to your lower parking lights (such as Chevy Full Size).

Installation Instruction for Convertor Harness

Certain projector headlights, such as the 92-95 Civic projectors,- come with a special converter harness that can handle higher voltage but require additional installation steps.

Female Connector #1

Connect to stock projector headlight closest to battery or desired power source.

Female Connector #2

Connect to stock projector headlight farthest to battery or desired power source.

Male Connector

Connect to stock harness that is closest to the battery or desired power source

Ground Wire

Ground to body of vehicle

Power Wires

Connect to battery or power source

After installation, it is highly recommended to seal up the unused stock plug with electrical tape in order to prevent moisture from getting in it.

Euro Taillights

After market taillights with designs different from the original equipment, often with a clear, red, or smoked lens with rounded red reflectors on a colored housing. Common housing colors are chrome, black and cf (faux acarbon fiber).

LED Taillights

These after market taillights that utilize LED (Light Emitting Diode) technology to provide a different look and LED is a solid state technology, so its creates a brighter, longer lasting, and more responsive taillight compared to traditional taillights. Designs vary, but lenses are also typically red, clear, or smoked with housing in chrome or black. To accomodate for the lower voltage of LED technology, some LED taillights come with small resistor boxes to regulate current.

- Determining where the screws and bolts are on your stock lights can be the hardest part of installation. To get a better idea, inspect the replacement taillights for bolt holes and mounting pegs.
- Even with stock parts from the dealer, condensation to some degree is a fact of life. To ensure as little condensation as possible, you can use clear silicone sealant (available in most hardware stores in the plumbing section) to seal the edges of your lights.
- Certain lights that do not use the stock bulbs/harness can confuse your vehicle's computer and cause a warning light. In these cases, the first thing to try is disconnecting one terminal on your vehicle's battery for a few minutes and then reconnecting it to reset your computer.
- For certain plug in LED components, the plugs must be inserted to the stock harness in a specific orientation. In your taillights do not light up during installation, disconnect and reconnect the plugs in the opposite direction.
- If one side of your LED light is flashing too rapidly, that is a good sign that the resistor box has come loose or worn out. Try reconnecting or replacing the resistor box to alleviate the problem.

Third Brake Lights
LED Technology

LED's will last up to 80 times longer than incandescent bulbs since LED contain no filament

An LED third brake light will give you much greater illumination in your truck bed making nighttime access safer and easier

Add safety with the new brake lights' super bright red LED's alerting fellow drivers when you hit the brakes

Installing the new LED brake lights is a snap

All LED third brake lights are DOT/SAE approved

Treat yourself to an inexpensive, highly functional and awesome upgrade by installing a new LED third brake light

Lights brighter for added safety

Can handle the roughness of everyday driving .... in all conditions

It's so easy, simply remove your vehicle's stock 3rd brake light, unplug it from the stock wiring, plug in your pre-wired LED 3rd brake light, replace the screws (in the stock location) and you're done. It really is that easy to add this modern look of a real LED 3rd brake light to your vehicle.

Remove the 2 screws located at the end of the brake light. Save screws for the after marker light. After removing the screws pull the brake straight out. Remove the plastic clips which holds the wire harness to cab to have more play from harness. Twist and pull the sockets out of the stock brake light housing. Remove the bulb from the center socket. Caution: Bulb may be hot !

Connect the LED pigtail to the socket, making sure the wires match up green to green and black to black. Install the cargo lights into the LED housing. Install the screws on each side. Make sure all functions are working properly before driving the vehicle.
